- President Ellen Johnson Sirleaf met with 14 Liberian young ladies who recently returned home from Lebanon and assured them that her administration would do everything possible to ensure that justice prevail and those held accountable for their ordeal face the full weight of the law.

The Liberian chief executive called on the young ladies to exercise patience in view of the usually long drawn out judicial process. She was quick to add that in respect of the independence of that Branch of Government it would be wise to follow the process in order for justice to be done.

Three of the young ladies, speaking on behalf of their colleagues, thanked President Sirleaf for her personal interest in ensuring their successful return and expressed the hope that government would accelerate the return of their colleagues still trapped in Lebanon.
